The secretary clears all the clutter off her desk. She takes him by the tie and pulls him down. He manages to rip her top off while falling. They strip and take each other.

The office building explodes.

EXT. MAIN STREET - DAYTIME

Turmoil. Sirens. People rush about. A WOMAN sits on a curb, crying and attended to by hustling paramedics. The firetruck arrives on scene; firemen dismount. A commanding FIREMAN rushes his officers to get closer to the scene with water support. Amidst the chaos, he notices the crying woman. She notices him, ceasing to cry. He advances. She rises and walks forward as if compelled, casting off the medical blanket and her jacket. In the middle of the confusion, they embrace.

The firetruck explodes.

INT. HELICOPTER - DAYTIME

A female JOURNALIST speaks fast into the camera, trying to convey as much about the smoke rising in the distance as possible. She stops mid sentence, noticing the MALE PILOT. He rises from his duties and they take each other on the cockpit floor. The clothes fly everywhere. The cameraman notices the aircraft steering wheel, unmanned, tilting from side to side.

EXT. NEW YORK HIGHWAY - DAYTIME

The black car and the police weave in and out of traffic, going north on a southbound lane.

The chase passes a billboard advertising a brand of jeans. The supermodel posing on it isn't wearing any pants. The building beside it is on fire.

The fleeing car takes a turn into an industrial harbor district near the Manhattan River. A drawbridge crossing is being raised. The black car breaks through the barricades and rushes the rising bridge to make the jump. It soars, suspended by gravity, until midway through the velocity arc, it explodes.

In the distance, GODZILLA rises from the sea and roars.

An OLD WOMAN emerges from the bushes, adjusting her blouse. A young masculine hand pulls her back down.

A racially-profileable TERRORIST sits in the waiting lounge, fiddling with an improvised explosive device. Through a window in the background, a parked plane on the runway explodes. Startled, he turns to view the combustion, then turns back into his seat, disappointed. An entwined YOUNG COUPLE sitting beside him fall onto his lap, making out.
